EX-GOV. UTTER'S STORIES. at Amesbury, Mass.

Ex-Governor Utter of Rhode Island, who addressed the Main Street Con-gregational Men's club at Amesbury last week, told two amusing stories who addressed the Main Street Congregational Men's club at Amesbury last week, told two amusing stories which were related by Booker T. Washington while the two were together delivering addresses. Mr. Washington was relating some of the experiences that came to him among the colored people of the south. It takes quite a little fact and generaliship to keep harmony among the flocks of the many colored congregations. In one church, dissention arose between the preacher and his people and the affair at last became quite serious. Mr. Washington was called into the case to see if he could not straighten the difficulty out. Upon making inquiry as to the cause of the trouble, it was learned that the preacher had not been paid and the officials of the church refused to make good. Upon being pressed for a reason, the officials of the church refused to pay for the sermons being delivered a year ago and refused to pay for the seme sermons twice. The other story was relative to an aged colored bishop who was in the habit of gathering the young preachers of his district together that he persons who have been accustomed to call off the old name of the station after amouncing the name of the station and the officials of the church refused to make good. Upon being from the new officials of the church refused to pay for the serious. Mr. The person the official control of the station and the officials up early in the morning and crossed on the ice safely, but when the Egyptians came to cross later in the day the sun had melted the ice so the Egyptians fell through and were drowned. One young colored preacher late from Tuskegee replied to the old bishop that his story was not in keeping with that taught up to Tuskegee. "Don't they teach you the Bible up there?" shouted the old bishop. "Yes," replied the young preacher, "but how could there be ice when the Red sea is near the equator?" "Go way, young man," said the aged bishop. "This took place before there were any equators." — Newburyport (Mass.) News.

NO GYPSY MOTHS Found So Far by State Inspector Hollister.

G. H. Hollister of the state experiment station at New Haven, which is studying and practicing means of destroying the gypsy moth, is making a tour of this section of eastern Connecticut, in an effort to determine whether or not the pest has gained a foothold in Windham county. Mr. Hollister has visited Sterling. Oneco, Moosup, Plaintield, Central Village and about Danielson and vicinity. He has made a careful inspection, but as yet has failed to find any trace of the meths. Because of the prevalence of the pest in the vicinity of Mystic and Storington, however, it has been deemed wise to make the examination in Windham county in an enduavor to establish if the infected area has been successfully restricted.
